TYLER MCKENZIE EVANS

WRITER/DIRECTOR

During his childhood, to escape the mundanity of the suburbs in Mississauga, he would go to the theatres weekly, which is where he discovered his love for storytelling. Tyler's first short film Teething (2019) was accepted into 2019's Reelworld Film Festival. He wrote, directed, produced and edited the film. He has completed his second short film, I Live Here, which he has received funding from Ontario Arts Council, NFB and CBC. It had its world premiere at Aspen Shortfest 2022 and it will be streaming on CBC Gem in November 2022. Tyler's main goal is to create original stories centred around Black people and people of colour. He is currently writing his first feature film.

DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT

“

Many low-income neighbourhoods in Toronto have slowly been changing: overpriced grocery stores, coffee shops, and condos are popping up. People of colour that live in these areas eventually disappear along with the area they once knew. Melina, the protagonist, is our watcher; she notices little changes in her neighbourhood. As an audience members, we start to question if what she's noticing is really happening or if it's just her own paranoia. DIASPORA is dark and twisted in so many ways, and I'm extremely excited to have my world premiere at TIFF, a city that's been so close to my heart throughout my life.
